I am a 58 year old resident of CT that has been pursuing alternative practitioners for the past 45 years, with great results. I do not have any conditions or diseases and do not take any prescription medication. Over the years, whenever my body has become out of balance, I have been able to gently restore health through homeopathic remedies. I know first hand how valuable a well trained homeopath really is!

According to the current regulations, an MD can take a VERY SHORT course in homeopathy and then practice this very complex and specialized art. On the other hand, someone that intensely studies homeopathy for many hundreds of hours plus clinical observation and then supervised casework is not allowed to practice in CT because they are not also a doctor. This is absurd.

Please change the regulations so that all Homeopaths that are certified by the Council for Homeopathic Certification can practice legally in CT.
